

УДК 000.6

Ali Ahmad Farhat
(American University of Culture & Education, Lebanon)

E-GOVERNANCE FOR IMPROVED PUBLIC SECTOR SERVICE DELIVERY IN LEBANON AND BELARUS

Utilizing ICT as e-administration could yield incredible advantages in the change and modernization of people in general area. The experience of e-governance in a number of created and creating nations has demonstrated that ICT can be an instrument for more prominent administration conveyance with the objective of making strides benefit quality. E-governance can likewise advance 'great governance', that is, more noteworthy metro engagement can increment opportunities for coordinate portrayal and voice, and support for expanded popular government.

This paper look to test the part of e-governance in enhancing administration conveyance by modifying the main operator relationship. It additionally looks for to explain the quality parts of open administration. Solid authority is required to execute e-administration to catch and disguise the advantages of value benefits and fulfilled clients.

To finish up this paper has taken a gander at the part of e-administration in enhancing administration conveyance and quality and the effect that has on consumer loyalty with regards to a little creating nation. It is found in this examination that e-administration can possibly enhance benefit conveyance and consumer loyalty.

There is a tremendous fluctuation in the discernment and desire of typical natives in the nation with respect to benefit conveyance, nature of administrations and this has adversely influenced consumer loyalty over the quantity of years. There is an earnest need in Lebanon to utilize e-administration in every single open organization in perspective of the overall negative effect of central operator issue. Administration quality specifically has crumbled and e-administration ought to be viewed as a methods for enhancing it later on. Absence of research in Lebanon, requested consideration towards this theme, this examination will be useful to arrangement creators and specialists in its field, administration and particularly those in the Administration offices. Future research in e-administration ought to find a portion of the explanations behind using e-administration and specifically take a gander at what challenges a little creating country faces similarly as administration quality issues are concerned.